HARRISBURG, Dec. 15.—The sweeping graft charges that for seven months have raked the Democrats and altered the tempo of Pennsylvania politics, were committed at last to a "searching and yet impartial investigation" by a Dauphin County Grand Jury today.

The September Grand Jury, composed of eleven Republicans and eleven Democrats, as one member was excused, received the charge of special Judge Paul Schaeffer in open court, starting shortly after 10 a. m.

"You have been called to perform a serious and solemn duty," the Berks County jurist, named by the Supreme Court to conduct the proceedings, told the jury. "The fair name of your State, the proper administration of justice and the proper conduct of the state government, are all involved in the investigation which you are about to undertake. Do your duty fearlessly and with a due sense of your solemn obligation and responsibility."

The lone juror excused was Travor Lewis, Williamstown, who pleaded poor physical condition because of a recent stomach operation.

Schacht Seeks To Heal
Anglo-German Breach

By Charles A. Smith

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, sought today to heal the breach in Anglo-German relations caused by the Nazi boycott against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's speech before the Foreign Press Association.

Schacht, who arrived here yesterday for an "unofficial" visit, found considerable evidence that the attitude of the British government toward the totalitarian powers is stiffening.

In addition to Chamberlain's comments on the instability of governments and his forthright criticism of the German press, Schacht was confronted with the Prime Minister's warning, voiced in the House of Commons, that any Italian attempts to alter the territorial status quo in the Mediterranean area would cause "grave concern" in London.

According to German circles in London, Chamberlain's assertion that no form of government ever remains the same was the real reason for the boycott by Ambassador Herbert von Dirksen and German correspondents of the Press Association dinner Tuesday night.

Schacht, it was learned, is now faced with the task of trying to remove the "bad impression" caused by this boycott.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—(INS)—The treasury of the German Reich was swelled today by 250,000,000 marks ($100,000,000) from the pockets of German Jews with individual fortunes of more than 5,000 marks, who thus completed payment of the first of four levies of the $400,000,000 fine imposed on the German Jewish community.

The fine was decreed in punishment for the assassination of Ernst von Rath, German Embassy secretary in Paris, by a German-born Polish Jew.

Fully aware that swift retribution would be meted out for failure to pay their shares within the first levy deadline, many Jews turned everywhere during the past week in order to make the payments.

They paid for the most part in cash, while hundreds who were unable to unfreeze enough assets to meet the deadline were helped by wealthier friends and relatives.

The next payment which is due February 15, can be paid in stocks, securities and real estate.

Wealthy German Jews living abroad with capital or property in Germany, will be permitted to use the blocked mark account to meet the instalment.

In many cases, authorities have disregarded the rule that the first payment must be made in cash, accepting shares, bonds and similar investments on the ground that subsequent decrees have forbidden the Jews to sell their securities.

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 15.—A period of discussion occupied the greater portion of the meeting of Bucks County Medical Society, last evening, when members assembled in the Fountain House, Dr. C. R. Flory, Sellersville, newly-elected president, occupied the chair.

Business affairs for the year 1938 were closed, the physicians then discussing problems which are likely to confront the society and the public at large during the coming year.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

The one hundred and twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Warren Horse Company was held at the Golden Glow Tea Room at Hartsville. Its formal title is "The Warren Company for the Recovery of Stolen Horses and other property and the Detection of Thieves." The membership never exceeded fifty and the company now has 44 active members, more than ever in its history with one exception.

Organized for mutual protection, its members never held out their hands for federal or state handouts. They were able and willing to care for and protect themselves. Neither wealth, class nor religion, but character was and is the qualification for membership.

To preserve this historic atmosphere, the same rules under which the Warren Company was governed more than a century ago, are still intact, and are enforced with almost legal severity. The roll call is repeated three times at the opening of every yearly meeting, at exactly the time of meeting. One minute late subjects the members to a fine of 12½ cents. Smoking during the session draws a fine of 6½ cents. If members are absent from the yearly meeting, they are liable for all the assessments those present paid.

The meeting this year was called to order by the president, Ezra P. Carroll. After routine business the company adjourned until after dinner, which was served to thirty-six. When the company reconvened, the secretary read a memorial on Franklin W. Oehle, Sr., a member who died during the year.

A resolution offered changes the time of meetings from 4 to 6 o'clock p. m., and dinner until 7 p. m.

Election of officers resulted as follows: President, Ezra P. Carroll; vice-president, I. Comly Bennett; secretary, John L. Stover; treasurer, John C. Beans, and committee on accounts, C. M. Morrison, Robert Engart and Robert Darrah.

To the delight of no less than 900 children from all parts of the county and to the surprise of about 600 adults, Santa Claus put in a very sudden appearance at the Christmas party held in the Tyro Hall Grange hall, Buckingham, under the auspices of the Loyal Republican Club. Not only did Santa put in his appearance, but he lived up to his reputation for kindness and thoughtfulness by greeting the children, listening to their wants for Christmas and finally distributing many pounds of candy and dozens of oranges.

This was only one of the fine features of the second annual Christmas party sponsored by the club. The affair was held under the direction of Harris Holmes, Doylestown, president of the club, who was assisted in arranging the party by a group of men.

Part of the story of his boxing career was told by "Tommy" Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion of the world, last night, at the Knights of Columbus home. Also on the same program with Loughran was one of his school chums, Gerald Gleason, Assistant United States Attorney General of Eastern Pennsylvania.

Loughran after stating his experiences to the large gathering was besieged with autograph seekers and had difficulty in leaving the home.

The Philadelphia fighter who has little markings to show for his 227 fights spoke mostly of his trip to South America which took place just before he retired from ring warfare.

SHOP EARLY AND AID

By Window Shopper

Whether it be gifts for the wee tot, the adolescent, young woman and man, or for the aged, Bristol merchants are better equipped now than ever to cater to Christmas season needs.

A walk along the main thoroughfares with frequent stops in front of display windows is a revelation indeed.

When the motorist is in mind as the recipient of a gift, the Auto Boys are given first thought, then a visit to their store at 313 Mill street, results. Prominently displayed to the fore of one window is a pair of Yankee fog "lites," which are so much needed at this season of the year. Many times over when driving through "pea-soup" fog, such as has been experienced in the last few weeks, will the one receiving such silently thank the donor. A pair of these amber-toned lights comes complete with switch and wire, with installation being free.

A desk for the juvenile? That is a fine suggestion for the growing girl or boy, and will be a gift of the type that will last through the adolescent years. Dries Furniture Store, at Mill and Pond streets, shows several such in tow or three styles. Some feature the roll top, while others have the folding sectional covers for the desk top. Trim in some instances is in black, and many feature several drawers down the side to care for stationery, books, etc. Some have numerous compartments or "pigeon-holes" for neatly storing the pens, pencils, and other items. At such a desk the smaller child can draw or color to his heart's content, and the young student can really secure more pleasure and satisfaction from his home-work.

Are you considering having one or more of your rooms painted or papered for the holiday season? There is a wide range of selection in the wall-papers which are sold at Woler's Paint & Wallpaper Store, 318 Mill street. Whether it be the washable type or otherwise, Woler sells it. And as to paints, enamels, shellacs, varnishes, or the equipment to do them with in.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

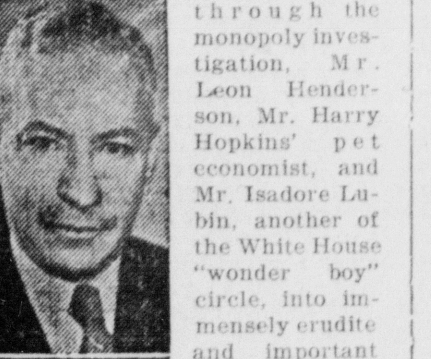

By FRANK R. KENT

The Buildup Overdone

Washington, Dec. 14.

THE EFFORT to build up, through the monopoly investigation, Mr. Leon Henderson, Mr. Harry Hopkins' pet economist, and Mr. Isadore Lubin, another of the White House "wonder boy" circle, into immensely erudite and important fellows whose figures and theories must be accepted as authoritative, has already begun to bog down pretty badly. It is likely to do so completely before the end.

ONE REASON is because neither of these individuals appears to have the age, the experience or the standing in the field of economics to justify any such exaggerated idea about him. Another is that the publicity is so plainly inspired by the Corcoran-Cohen-Jackson group, to which they adhere. At least it flows through the same journalistic channels which members of that group so consistently use to promulgate their plans.

IT IS regarded as part of the general scheme to mold the monopoly investigation along the lines laid down by the President's advisers. The idea seems to be that by starting the investigation off in a benign instead of belligerent fashion and exhibiting the Messrs. Henderson and Lubin as extremely profound and authoritative fellows, when the time comes to really belt big business in the belly, both the Congressional members of the committee and the newspapers will have been so impressed by the great statistical wisdom of the New Deal economists that their statements will be accepted without question. Anyone who is deceived by the benevolent nature of the proceedings to date into believing that the original purpose of "belting big business" has been abandoned, is just foolish.

HOWEVER, the "buildup" seems to have been a bit overdone. For one thing, reiteration that Mr. Henderson was the only man who predicted the depression of 1937

Conference Progresses

Lima, Peru, Dec. 15.—A declaration of American "solidarity and conscience" began to take place today at the eighth Pan-American Conference, as a compromise between Argentine and the United States plans for some sort of agreement on inter-American moral co-operation against outside aggression.

The delegations to the conference today worked intensively on the text of the American plan of agreement, which is expected that the Argentine will object to the American project for a "gentlemen's agreement" which would have been the basis of a continental pact for mutual defense.

Several delegations, including that of the United States, have not yet expressed their acceptance today of the new type of declaration which, it is expected, will reflect the views of Argentine Foreign Minister Castillo, that no danger of foreign aggression of war requiring a continental neutral defense pact exist at this time.

Saved 901 Lives

Harrisburg, Dec. 15.—An analysis made by the Research and Statistical Division of the Accidents Prevention Bureau of the Revenue Department disclosed today that Governor Earle's highway safety program saved 901 lives during the past year.

Inaugurated on January 1st, the Governor's "speed war" was credited with aiding in slashing Pennsylvania's highway death toll of 2329 for the first eleven months of 1937 to 1428 for the same period this year.

Reduction in injuries over the same period totaled 12,009. For eleven months last year 55,899 persons were injured compared to 43,896 this year.

GIVING OTHERS AID
IS HIS CHIEF HOBBYJos. S. Law, Parkland, Active
In the Work of Bucks
County Rescue Squad

MADE IT A STUDY

In the current issue of "The Telephone News" there is an interesting article entitled "Saving Lives Is His Hobby." The article deals with the work of Joseph S. Law, in the Bucks County Rescue Squad which now has first aid stations at Croydon and Parkland and is carrying on a wonderful work.

The article reads:
The name of the Bucks County Rescue Squad in a few years has become well known beyond the county borders, as a result of the excellent accident and first aid work it performs. But, a fact that is not so well known—especially to telephone people—is that one of its most active members and director of first aid is a Bell of Pennsylvania, Joseph S. Law, an installer at Ogontz.

Law, who started his telephone career as a draftsman back in 1917, has made first aid his hobby, and what a hobby it is! His first training in this work was gained in our Company and by the time he had completed the regular course of instruction given our plant men and received a Red Cross certificate in first aid, he was so intensely interested in the work that he continued to study all advanced methods.

His wife shares this interest and kept pace with her husband in his studies. She now is quite active in the Rescue Squad as her husband.

In 1932, residents of Croydon became disturbed by the great number of highway accidents and the fact that there were no public facilities nearer than Bristol or Philadelphia to care for accident victims.

Robert A. Porter, of Croydon, organized the Bucks County Rescue Squad, consisting of a group of persons skilled in first aid, who were willing to volunteer their time and assistance to further the project. They used an old garage at Croydon as a first aid station.

Later, Law was asked to give a course of instruction in first aid to some of the volunteers. He readily consented and became so interested in their work that he joined the group and offered space in his home at Parkland as an additional First Aid station.

The Rescue Squad's personnel has grown until it now numbers forty-three persons at Parkland and eighty-five at Croydon. There is somebody on duty in both stations twenty-four hours a day. They work in two-hour shifts, except at the Law house where Joseph and his wife stand ready to receive night calls.

Eight Bucks County doctors co-operate with the Squad and one is usually on call to go with members to the scene of a serious accident or dress wounds at one of the stations after the injured have been brought in. The next step is to transfer the badly injured to a hospital or get the less serious cases to their homes. This is all part of the Squad's service.

In the beginning, the garage at Croydon had very meager equipment. Now, however, through contributions by residents of Bucks County and purchases of equipment by the volunteers themselves, both stations are adequately equipped, even for emergency operations.

The stations have operating tables, instruments, sterilizers and, of course, medicines, bandages and splints. There are sun lamps which are used to aid the health of local children. A supply of insulin is always at hand for the treatment of diabetes who are under a doctor's care but who are unable to afford the drug. Occasionally, when funds are low, a bridge party or a supper is arranged and the proceeds used for necessities at the stations.

For the Parkland station, which is

Several Wills Are Probated In
The Courts of Bucks County

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 14.—A daughter, Mary Farina, 264 Minor street, Bristol, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Luigi Farina, Bristol, amounting to $3150. Four children, Samuel and Louis, two sons; and Amelia and Mary, two daughters, are the heirs.

Mrs. Mary E. Styer, of Richlandtown, will inherit the $100 personal estate of her husband, Charles Styer, of Richlandtown.

Leaving a personal estate of $3,000, Elmer Austin, of this place, who named his daughter, Edith Helwig, 323 South Main street, executrix, left the bulk of his estate to his two children, Charles Austin, Flemington, N. J., and Edith A. Helwig, this place.

A grandson, George Rush, was bequeathed $500. The will, which was probated in the Register of Wills' office, here, was executed in December, 1932. In a codicil, written May 20, 1936, the testator directed that his daughter, who was most kind to him, should receive remuneration for expenditures. The sum of $100 was also bequeathed to Lila Stowell, Doylestown.

Although his will was probated December 16, 1935, three codicils written by Allen S. Christman, Trumbauersville, who left a personal estate of $12,000 and real estate valued at $7,000, were filed in the Register of Wills' office, here, recently.

The first codicil, executed by the testator September 20, 1929, directs that his widow, Laura, should inherit five shares of Valley National Bank of Green Lane stock. The second codicil, written August 22, 1930, directs that his widow receive a bequest of $1,000 outright in addition to stipulations in the will. The third codicil, which was written November 25, 1935, five days before the death of Mr. Christman, directs that five shares of Quakertown Trust Company stock be substituted for the Valley National Bank of Green Lane stock.

The $500 and upwards personal and $10,000 and upwards real estate holdings of Charles S. Schroy, of Quakertown, will be inherited by his widow, Ida M. Schroy, 201 West Broad street, Quakertown.

Three children, Emma Hee, Charles and Joseph Neuman, will share the $5,000 personal estate of Frank F. Neuman, of Trumbauersville, who named Charles Neuman, Quakertown, R. D. No. 1, the executor. The two sons were also bequeathed their father's carpenter tools and other personal possessions.

Dinner-Party Conducted
By Real Estate Board

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 15.—Bucks County Real Estate Board staged its Christmas dinner-party last evening, when 50 men and women gathered in the Devon Restaurant for a tasty menu which featured turkey as the piece-de-resistance.

With decorations in keeping with the season, the group had an enjoyable time about the festive board, with balloons, paper hats, and noise-makers. A decorated evergreen had a prominent place in the dining hall.

Performances by a ventriloquist and an accordionist pleased, and games caused much hilarity.

Ralph Schlichter, Sellersville, was in charge of the plans.

SOUND OR FANTASTIC?

A press dispatch from Washington says that when the plan virtually to double the Air Corps first was rumored "some high-ranking officers" called it "fantastic."

The plan now has progressed far beyond the status of a rumor. The President mentioned it in his recent policy statement, in which he included the whole of South America within the scope of our defense provisions and implied that a vastly increased air force would be our chief reliance in fulfilling the added responsibility.

Congress should go into this phase of the subject very thoroughly, whenever the new defense measures finally are submitted to it. The public is entitled to know how practical aviation may be as an arm for South American defense. If the enlarged Air Corps was fantastic a while ago, is it any less fantastic now? And, if so, why?

The subject needs to be aired openly and frankly, if only to set at rest the anxieties our preparations easily may inspire among the South Americans. If our military authorities do not believe the enlarged Air Corps to be required for defense, the assumption fairly may be made that it has other purposes.

BEST WISHES ONLY

The monthly statistical bulletin of the League of Nations estimates the world's population as of December, 1937, was 2,134,000,000, which is quite a lot of people.

It reminds one, as any figure in the billions is apt to do, of the American national debt. Let us imagine that the world, softened by the kindly spirit of the 1937 Yuletide, had decided to pay off our national debt for us. It would have cost every man, woman and child in the world exactly $17.99.

That would have been a rather handsome gift. However, the world didn't give it, and won't. We must begin to get used to the idea that the American national debt will have to be paid off by us Americans, and at a considerably higher per capita rate. The rest of the 2,134,000,000, if we are lucky, will continue to favor us with their best wishes for a happy new year.

New York's police commission has decreed that hereafter no policeman will be permitted to pose for newspaper photographs, no matter how courageous an act he may have performed. But, of course, they will not be responsible if they are snapped without their knowledge.

We would take that expert's advice about giving children names suiting their outstanding characteristics only we believe that as they grow older they will become less like Scarface and Benito.

"I want to say that I am not a candidate for the Presidency," cried Bennett Champ Clark at a victory dinner, just before his friends closed in.

No community ever reached a high level of prosperity through talk alone. It takes something more than wind to pull a town up the hill.

Poor creatures! By the time they are thin enough to be in fashion, their elbows look awful.

Adds To Air Force

London, Eng., Dec. 15.—France has strengthened her air force in Tunisia in view of the Fascist demands for annexation of that protectorate and other French territories, the London Daily Express reported from Tunis today.

The paper said that 21 French bombers which engaged in practice maneuvers over Tunis, postponed their homeward flight to Lyons, pending Premier Mussolini's forthcoming speech at Sardinia.

Open New Steel Plant

Pittsburgh, Dec. 15.—More than 1500 leaders of the country's industrial and commercial life today inspected the formal opening of Carnegie-Illinois Steel Company's new $65,000,000 Irvin Works, near Clairton, 9 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. The new plant was built for peaceful purposes, but it was pointed out it would be a great factor for national reliance in the event the United States became involved in war.

ALUMNI BASKETBALL PRACTICE

There will be an Alumni basketball practice on the high school floor tomorrow evening at six o'clock. All those who indicated their willingness to play with the Alumni against the varsity quintet on Tuesday evening, January 3, are requested to report for practice. It is also requested that each one bring his own equipment and be ready to play at six as the time is limited.

Loughran Relates Some Of His Experiences

He told of his fight with the South American champion, Saracholla, in which he floored the South American with a hook to the jaw and was warned about it, the referee claiming that it was an illegal blow because he had never seen it before.

Another interesting incident experienced by the broad-shouldered Irish fighter was the bout with Leo Lomski for the light-heavy title. In this bout that Loughran lost all fear of death for in the second round, Lomski floored Loughran and for the next five rounds, Tommy was in a daze and did not know he was in a fight until the sixth round was almost over. He won the fight but later going down the steps to the dressing room a friend patted him on the back which caused him to slip and sprain his ankle.

The story of his bout with Harry Greb, right after the latter had whipped Tommy Gibbons and Gene Tunney, was related. Tommy wasn't ceded a ghost of a chance in this fight but he went on to win it and it was the stepping stone in his career.

Before he concluded, Loughran had a word to say about his proteges, Matt Raymond and Johnny Morgan and claimed that the latter in about another year will be one of the best lightweights to don the mittens. He also told the audience the way in which Henry Armstrong, colored sensation, could be beaten.

Mr. Gleason's speech was on federal enforcement of the law. He told of the difference between state and federal laws and how both are enforced. The seventeen powers granted the federal government under the Constitution must have teeth in them so federal law is necessary besides your state laws, said Gleason.

The Assistant District Attorney General told of the violating of the federal laws in this section, such as counterfeiting, bootlegging, white slave traffic, post office cases, bankruptcy laws, drug laws, interstate commerce laws, and kidnapping.

Mr. Gleason spoke of the capturing of two counterfeiting rings in Eastern Pennsylvania within the past year and how one plant in Fox Chase had made $60,000 worth of counterfeit money so near-perfect that the only way of detecting that it was counterfeit was that government paper was not used.

The trials held by the federal court are in the same order of those of the state and if you are dissatisfied with the court's decision, an appeal could be made to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and if still dissatisfied, the United States Supreme Court.

The Eastern district court takes in ten counties from upper Pennsylvania to Delaware County and the United States Circuit Court of Appeals takes in three states, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

Mr. Gleason spoke of the G-men and the fine work they are accomplishing and how bank robberies are now the work of government men because of the Federal Deposit Law of which most banks are members.

The assistant attorney general advised the gathering that if the occasion should present itself, all should inspect the Federal Bureau of Investigation Department in Washington.

MY LOVE IS NEW by IRIS BENNETT

CHAPTER XXVI

Flipping her cigarette to the lawn, Avis took a step back-but the high heel of her green sandal caught in the hem of her dress. Gordon caught her and kissed her.

"Let me go, Gordon! Cheating so soon? You aren't married to her yet! I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man in the world. I'd rather never have you at all than have you and lose you and know you were cheating!"

He let her go and looked after her. But she did not return to the club. Hurrying across the lawn, she went directly to her car and drove away.

"There goes a million dollars out of my life," he thought, and permitted himself the brief pleasure of thinking what he could do with a million dollars. A million—and Avis. He saw them together in well-remembered places—Paris, Switzerland, Cannes. And he saw the same friends who had made his living in New York intolerable welcoming him back and forgetting the past. Once Lisbeth had said, "You're just a playboy at heart, Gordon! You hate work! You only work when your money runs out! But you always manage to find a picturesque job!"

He found Constance sitting on the stone bench. Seeing him, her lovely flecked eyes were no longer thoughtful but alive.

"I've been looking all over for you," he said cheerfully and drew her to her feet and kissed her soft warm mouth. And only a few moments ago he had kissed Avis. . . . "Shall we look for Irene and Alex and go?" The party's pretty dull.

The Conans were leaving in the morning. At the Spanish house Constance said good-bye to them and Gordon drove her home.

But it was nearly dawn before she slept, finally exhausted from thinking and from trying to see beyond today. But plans fell apart before they took definite shape. Loving Gordon enslaved you and put you in a cage where you shook the bars and wondered frantically if you were ever going to get out and what was going to happen to you!

Two days later Avis Bailey left Northwood. . . . Quite suddenly, it seemed, it was autumn. Parched leaves of yellow and red and brown dropped from the trees and covered the smooth lawn before the Spanish house. The slim lawn furniture was brought in and Constance and Gordon had their luncheon brought to the study where for the past several days they had been working on the last chapter of the book.

Rosalind and Van returned from Bermuda and went to live with the Howards while their new home was being built. A happy, wise Rosalind had returned to rush straight to her mother from the train. Matt Darby's grim face had broken into his most pleasant smile when his younger daughter had put her arms around him and kissed him. Constance had seen Rosalind only once and then had sat quietly while her sister extolled the beauty of Bermuda and talked excitedly about her new house. And one night Constance came home to find her parents in happy confusion because the Howards had invited the Darbys to dinner and Ruth was saying that she must have a new dress, and Matt gave one of his rare deep chuckles and said he supposed he would have to wear his dinner coat which he had not worn for ten years.

Constance laughed at them. "They'll have you in Northwood society yet, Father."

He gave a cheerful grunt. "And have me taking dancing lessons and playing golf."

Ruth asked, "Well, do I get the new dress or don't I?"

And Constance said, "You might try a sit-down strike, Mother."

"And when Constance leaves us, you'll have to give me train fare," Ruth said. "Married daughters are expensive."

He raised his head and frowned at Constance. Then he said, "Yes, that's right, isn't it? You will be leaving us soon."

It was the first time he had ever mentioned her approaching marriage.

The morning before the Howard dinner party Constance drove leisurely through the Hills to Gordon. Her mother had said, "I can wear my new dress to your wedding. I wish, dear, that you would tell me what plans you and Gordon have made and whether you're going to be married in church or at home."

And she had answered simply and honestly, "We have no plans, Mother. We've been working very hard on the book."

It was a cool dreary day and she was wearing a brown suit and yellow sweater. Stepping from the car, she crossed the lawn, brown now from early frosts, and opened the door. For quite sometime she had ceased to ring the bell to bring Mrs. Green from her kitchen duties.

Quietly she crossed the carpeted hall and paused before the partly opened study door, paused because she heard voices and wondered if she should intrude.

But when the voice spoke clearly, there was no mistaking who it was and the meaning of the words. And suddenly she wished that she could run away or be struck deaf so that she could not hear. But she was rooted where she stood and could not move and the voice spoke again. . . .

In the study Avis was saying, "I went to New York and my trunks were on the ship but I didn't go. I couldn't go because—because I love you, Gordon. Oh, no, I still haven't any illusions about you. I know you married Lisbeth Shelley for her money and broke her heart and that there have been scores of women in your life. I know you're broke and in debt, even for the rent of this house, and that you borrowed money from Alex Conant when he was here to see you through your marriage to Constance. How long do you suppose that will last? Oh, you'll spend it handsomely and generously as if it were a million. Money is the most important thing in the world to you. It always has been. But you've always been more successful with women than with money."

"You've said all this before, Avis," Gordon said impatiently. "Yes, I know. But this is something I haven't said before. I didn't tell you I'd marry you. You proposed to me at least six times before you asked Constance to marry you and I turned you down every time." Suddenly her voice was kinder and softer. "But now I'm telling you I'll marry you and I'll let you use my money because—because I'd rather have you for a little while before you make me unhappy than have a lifetime with any other man. That's how it is, Gordon. You win again. Now you can put me in your gallery of women. I thought I could be different but I'm not different. I love you and I've come back to you. Women in love haven't any pride. Love is humble. It's a rich girl or a poor girl, Gordon. . . ."

A pain so sharp went through Constance that it seemed to divide her. She reached for the door facing and held onto it. Her eyes were wide and dazed. What was she hearing? He had asked Avis to marry him at least six times. . . . He had borrowed money from Alex Conant. . . . And money was the most important thing in his life. . . . And Avis loved him and was offering herself and her money. . . . She had no strength to move and so she had to stand and listen to the voice that spoke again.

Avis said, "You don't love me. But I attract you and you've kissed me at every opportunity. That night at the club, for instance, the last time I was there. I do not expect it to last if we marry but I shall do everything I can and give everything in me to make it last. You're too selfish to know the depth and extent of a woman's love. You never appreciated Lisbeth Shelley's deep love for you that endured long after your divorce and which still endures from all I hear. You think you know women but you don't know what a woman in love will do. It's her whole existence. I'm a fool over you and I know it. I can think of a dozen men a thousand times finer than you and any one of them would make me a better husband. But I don't want them. I want you with your faults and weaknesses. I'm probably just kidding myself when I think I can reform you. Oh, no, you're not a thief or a murderer but some of the things you've done are crimes within the law. Surely it is a crime to ruin a good woman's life. I heard of a letter you wrote to Lisbeth Shelley after she had left you and gone back to her father. She had written you asking to come back to you. I heard your reply quoted almost word for word and it was the cruellest, coldest letter I can conceive of. She was so young then and unhappy and in love with you. That's the one regret of her life, you know, that she left you at all. She wishes she had stayed. I don't believe you're as cruel as you were then. Bad luck and hard times have tamed you considerably. Or perhaps Constance has with her beautiful, blind love for you. . . ."

"That was a long time ago, Lisbeth and me, Avis. Why bring that up again?"

Her beautiful, blind love for him. . . . Everything Avis was saying reverberated a dozen times in Constance's mind that was open and receptive now. And later she remembered the changing tones of Avis's voice—when it was hard and when it was tender and when it was humble. Oh, stop it! Stop it! She could not hear anymore! And yet somehow she could not move to silence the voice and it was as if she were being forced to stand there helplessly and suffer and listen. . . .

ON THE SCREENS

Five new songs, each of them regarded as a sure-fire hit, are introduced in "Garden of the Moon," the new Warner Bros. musical which opens today at the Grand Theatre with John Payne as its featured vocalist. Payne, the handsome, dark-haired youth with a caressing voice who stepped into the role originally intended for Dick Powell, shares the acting honors with Pat O'Brien and Margaret Lindsay.

Probably destined for biggest success is a lilting melody sung by Payne which is entitled "Confidentially." His other solo numbers, also infectious tunes with toe-tickling rhythms, are "Love Is Where You Find It" and "Garden of the Moon."

The two other songs are of the novelty classification and are so cleverly presented that for many people they will undoubtedly be the most enjoyable features of the production. They are entitled "The Girl Friend of the Whirling Dervish" and "The Lady on the Two-Cent Stamp."

BRISTOL

Yesterday the Bristol Theatre began a two-day run of "Love Before Breakfast," the Universal comedy hit starring Carole Lombard. This screen offering is delightfully humorous, sometimes gay and bubbling; sometimes witty and biting; always modern, devil-may-care and entertaining.

Carole Lombard is a vision to behold in the sequences where she wears "last word" fashions. She is a polished performer who delivers her amusing lines spontaneously as if she thought up the wise cracks herself. The situations are basically funny, which gives added effect to the rippling dialogue.

"Love Before Breakfast" is a meal ticket punched full of hearty laughs. There is a horseback riding scene which will make the men in the audience gloat, when they perceive a self-opinionated girl compelled to take a back seat, literally. The ocean sequences are irresistible, with more laughs than there are toots in a steamboat whistle. The battle in the night club is a howl for those who like their comedy "with a kick" in it.

Preston Foster portrays one of Carole's sweethearts and Cesar Romero is the other. Many a young feminine heart will go pit-a-pat over these handsome leading men. Which balances the masculine eyes that will open wide when they glimpse the ravishing blonde beauty of Carole Lombard. See the film and laugh your troubles away.

NEW YORK — (INS) — "Steve Brodie" is to jump not once but six times every day from a representation of the Brooklyn Bridge—from which the real "Steve" made a legendary leap decades ago—in the "Old New York" Amusement Area of the New York World's Fair 1939.

Montgomery County Veterinary Medical Club held a few days ago at the National Farm School, near Doylestown, with C. L. Goodling as the host. Many topics of general interest and relating to internal medicine were discussed.

Dr. W. J. Leutz, of the School of Veterinary Medicine, University of Pennsylvania, spoke on canine proctology, stressing especially internal medicine and surgery.

Throughout the remainder of the Winter the guest speakers will be members of the faculty of the School of Veterinary Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania. The next meeting will be held the forepart of February.

During November, Miss Maud L. Wagner, Red Cross rural school nurse for middle Bucks county, made 132 visits and covered 1499 miles.

The general program of work has been conducted the same as usual. About 16 families including about 75 individuals were furnished with new and used clothing. Nearly all the clothing has been given out.

Visits to clinics at the Abington Hospital were as follows: Peri-vascular, 1; X-ray, 1; eye, 2; surgical, 2.

The nurse has about completed her work with medical inspection in the schools. Much follow-up work for the correction of physical defects will be necessary. Visits are now being made to the homes to advise and assist when necessary, in having the defects corrected.

Miss Elliman paid a visit to the nurse this month.

Miss Wagner's activities were listed as follows: Health supervision: Visits to school children, 54; adult visits, 24; other visits, 39; visited 15 schools; assisted with medical inspection of 51 pupils receiving treatment.

located on the first floor of their home, the Laws have purchased some additional equipment at their own expense.

One of the first things the Rescue Squad did after being organized was to put down $25 payment on a second-hand ambulance. It got so much use that, like the one-horse shay, it practically fell to pieces. Later it was possible to purchase two second-hand vehicles. They are now at Croydon. They hope to have a new one at Croydon soon. This year a brand new ambulance proudly puts forth from the Parkland station on errands of mercy.

Mindful of the fact that there probably always will be motor accidents, drownings and fires, and encouraged by the support already received, Joseph Law and his Rescue Squad associates are looking to the future; they're training a group of juniors in this work so that they'll be ready to step in and keep things going as replacement volunteers are needed for this very worthwhile undertaking.

Merchants Here Ready To Meet Yule Needs your desire to "spruce up" the home for the holiday, one visit will convince that one need not look further.

What boy does not revel in a good supply of sweat-shirts, and what lad would stop at one "thank you" for a gift of one or more of the Rabart Sweat Shirts from Vandegrift's Men's Shop, Mill and Pond streets? A choice of such combination of colors as black and red, yellow and blue, orange and black, and many others, will please any youth. And this particular make is tailor made, reinforced, features all-way action, body comfort and arm-ease.

When "Fiesta" ware comes to mind as a gift for a friend at the Yuletide it is natural that J. S. Lynn's shop at 312 Mill street is thought of. Offered in sets of 24 pieces with a six-color range in this set for four, "Fiesta" wear will strike a gay note for holiday luncheons. Another fine gift suggestion at Lynn's is a console set in chromium, the bowl and candle-sticks featuring dainty filigree work.

The Winter holiday season, so it seems, sees more entertaining than any other time. And with this in mind Profy's Radio Shop at 211 Mill street, is showing a refreshment table with exceptionally attractive lines. This set comes complete with table, automatic toaster, several glass service dishes, four thin wooden serving trays, and toast-cutter. What enjoyment such a gift would give any household, whether the couple to whom presented be young, middle-aged or old, as long as it spells hospitality!

As a suggestion to make the little wife happy throughout the years to come, C. W. Winter, 248 Mill street, invites you to "give your wife work-less washdays." A Bendix home laundry which washes, rinses, damp-dries, all automatically, is the offering by this merchant. This "successor to the washing machine" has revolutionized Mondays in many house-holds, and will make wash-day a pleasure in every home where the husband is so thoughtful as to put it on his Christmas list.

NEW FACES IN POLITICS

Leverett Saltonstall
Governor-Elect of Massachusetts

BOSTON, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Governor-elect Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts is no stranger to the duties and burdens imposed on the holder of high public office.

Wealthy scion of an old New England family, he enters upon his new responsibility with a background of nearly two decades of public service. He is 46, father of five children, is known as a family man with a hobby for farming.

Saltonstall's decisive victory over the veteran Democrat, James M. Curley, in the November, 1938, election caused followers to acclaim him as savior of the Republican Party in his home State. He was the first Republican governor elected in Massachusetts since 1930. A Saltonstall was an official of the Plymouth Bay Colony in the early days of the Bay State.

The flush of victory, however, was not the first experienced by tall, lean "Lev" Saltonstall. In 1920 he was elected Alderman in his native city of Newton, and subsequently he served as Assistant District Attorney of Middlesex County, member of the general court, member of the House of Representatives, and Speaker of the House. Saltonstall demonstrated his leadership during his eight-year tenure as Speaker of the House. He was known never to yield a point he believed was right. He was frequently a thorn in the side of Curley when the latter occupied the Governor's chair, clashing with the executive over legislation.

Tradition decreed that Saltonstall matriculate at Harvard following his graduation from Noble and Greenough School, and in 1914 he won his A. B. degree. Three years later he was graduated from Harvard Law School.

As a Harvard undergraduate, Saltonstall joined the Crimson hockey squad and in his senior year played with the varsity sextet that vanquished an unbeaten Princeton team captained by the famous Hobey Baker.

He pulled a strong oar, too, as was witnessed by the fact that he rowed with the Harvard crew which won a world championship at Henley in 1914. His teammates knew him as a plodder who was not easily disturbed by failure.

The persistency which marked his adventures in intercollegiate sports later was displayed by Saltonstall in the Massachusetts legislature.

During the World War he served overseas as a first lieutenant of the 301st Field Artillery, and upon his return practiced law. Meanwhile, he displayed a wide interest in public affairs. Saltonstall's sole defeat in the political arena occurred in 1936 when he was defeated for the Lieutenant-Governorship by Francis Kelly, Democrat. Earlier he had lost the pre-primary endorsement of his party for governor by the scant margin of nine votes.

"Lev" likes to putter around his farmhouse in Dover where he spends his week-ends. Occasionally he milks the cows, beds down the cattle and feeds the chickens. Another hobby of his is exploring the rocky Maine coast in a boat.

In the humanitarian field, Saltonstall has given active help to the Perkins Institute for the Blind in Boston and to the Farm and Trades School for Orphan Boys on Thompson's Island, Boston Harbor.

Sharing with him in these interests are his wife, the former Miss Anna Wesselhoft of Boston, whom he married in 1916, and their children.

IMPRISON NAZI SPIES

METZ, France.—(INS)—Two men, charged with acting as spies in behalf of Germany, today were serving 15-year prison sentences after being found guilty by a military tribunal. Following their release from prison, they will be banished from France for 20 years.

SHORT WAVE FOREST RADIO

PENDLETON, Ore.—(INS)—A short wave radio connected with remote parts of eastern Oregon's Umatilla National Forest, has proved effective in combating the dangers of summer fires and winter snows that block forest roads. Rangers and deputies are summoned to a particular scene from any part of the mountain area.

A Holiday Game for Young and Old

An interesting, amusing, and instructive game has been devised to add to the gaiety of this year's holiday parties. It is entitled the CHRISTMAS SEAL OBSERVATION TEST and can be used by family groups, party guests, in schools or wherever there is a gathering.

The group should be shown a full sheet of Christmas Seals and also one Seal given to each person. One minute can be allotted to look at the Seals.

The Christmas Seals should then be covered. Ask those questions—scoring five points for each correct answer:

1. Which members of the family are at the window?
2. In what year did people dress as shown in the Seals?
3. What was known of Tuberculosis then and now?
4. Which way does the woman face?
5. What is she doing?
6. For what holiday is she preparing?
7. What are the children doing?
8. What color are the boy's clothes?
9. What color are the girl's clothes?
10. Which one of the children has pants?
11. Name the shape, color and the material of the rug on which the group is standing.
12. What is shown in the background of the Seal? What color is it painted?
13. How many colors appear on the Seal? Which are Christmas colors?
14. Does every Seal on the sheet show the lady with the children? If not, what do the others show?
15. What has been the contribution of each to the tuberculosis movement? (Ans. Laennec, 1819, France, invented stethoscope, Koch, 1882, Germany, discovered germ of tuberculosis, Trudeau, 1884, U. S., founder of the sanatorium movement in U. S., Holboell, 1903, Denmark, conceived the idea of a Seal to be sold to fight tuberculosis.)

Persons desiring to conduct the test only need to secure from their local Tuberculosis Organization one or more sheets of Seals, which in addition to providing an interesting game will aid the campaign against tuberculosis.

FALLSINGTON TEAM HAS ITS EYE ON TOP OF LEAGUE

Team Has Made Good Showing In the First Games of Season

HAVE SIX LETTERMEN
Pair of Good Replacements Has Also Greatly Aided The Team

FALLSINGTON, Dec. 15 — Coach Jimmy Doheny's Fallsington Falcons, uncertain whether or not they were to play basketball this season until just last week, officially opened their 1938-39 court campaign Tuesday afternoon by playing at Moorestown High. And judging from the score of that tilt and the George School game last week, the Falcons appear to be set upon a great year.

In spite of the fact they are handicapped by lack of a home floor and therefore practice on only Monday and Thursday evenings at the Junior High in Trenton where they will play their home games, the team is a veteran one that is set upon finishing even higher than the third spot of last year in the Lower Bucks circuit. In fact, they have their eye on the top rung of the ladder for the first time in a number of years and if things go right, they may find themselves perched there when the curtain draws upon this campaign.

For no less than six lettermen of last year's array are back again this year, with a pair of good replacements left from the '38 Jayvees to fill in. In Bud Appenzeller and George Chewing, the two leading individual scorers in the Lower Bucks circuit last year, Coach Doheny has a pair of stellar forwards, and with Johnny Schaffer, one of the league's best defensive stars pairing off with Jim Castro, up from last year's J. V. outfit, guarding their nets, they have a good defensive club. When able to play, Vic Roberts, who was out much of last season with injuries, will perform at the pivot post this year again. This entire quintet which played most of the time in the George School game, looked very impressive.

Moreover, Coach Doheny has little George Lovett and Bill Batten, both of whom saw much action last year, again on the reserve list this season. Lovett played at the up-front post last year and will see most action there again this year. Batten filled in at the center berth when Ben Patterson and Vic Roberts were out with injuries. However, this year he will play a guard position. Jim Turner, a colored boy, up from the J. V. quintet, is expected to serve regularly at the pivot post in a substitute role.

The Falcons have not as yet completed their schedule, having two open Wednesdays and two open Fridays on their schedule still.

"HERBIE" LAWRENCE TO DON NEW OUTFIT TONIGHT

Herbie Lawrence, one of the high scorers of the past seasons in the Bristol Basketball League, will don a St. Ann's uniform tonight as the Saints meet Rohm & Haas in the second game scheduled. In the first game, Falls Alumni is matched against the Grundy's five.

Lawrence, who is known as a dead-shot, once he is set, will team with Johnny Slaven, former Bloomsburg College star. Slaven has been re-signed by the St. Ann's management. The remainder of the St. Ann's line-up will see Harry Berry at center with the guards being Ray Dorsey and Sid Greenblatt. Rohm and Haas needs this triumph to remain in the first half running. All of the leading teams have lost a game and stand a chance of being beat again. Either St. Ann's or the chemical workers will be eliminated tonight. In the Rohm and Haas lineup will be: Cahall, Massilla, Fegely, Dougherty, and Slaughter.

George Hermann's Grundy quintet pulled a surprise in trimming the Celtics in its last start and may again do the unexpected by beating the Falls Alumni which is the proud possessor of a three-game winning streak.

Referee Henry Morgan will make the first toss-up at eight o'clock sharp. Morgan is doing a fine job of refereeing, speeding the games so that the crowd is out of the Italian Mutual Aid playing court by 10:30 o'clock.

CHIMES FROM BELGIUM

NEW YORK—(INS)—A carillon of 35 bronze bells, the largest weighing 1,300 pounds, the smallest 15 pounds, are now being cast in Tournai, in Belgium, for the 150-foot tower of the Belgium Exhibit Building at the New York World's Fair 1939. They are expected to be played daily during the Exposition.

BEACHCOMBERS' LAMENT

NEWPORT, Ore.—(INS)—Beachcombers bemoaned the lack of Japanese floats which usually begin reaching northwestern shores with the winter storms. Local experts stated that the prevailing east winds have kept the floats offshore. One enterprising beachcomber has trained a dog to retrieve the globes.

WALKING ON COTTON

NEW YORK—(INS)—Cotton flooring, as welcome to tired feet as thick rugs and much more practical, is to be one example of several new uses for cotton exhibited in the North Carolina section of the Court of States at the New York World's Fair 1939.

NEW YORK—(INS)—A diamond cutting laboratory, in which skilled lapidaries will put glittering facets on gems, will be seen in the Belgian Pavilion at the New York World's Fair 1939. It will present Antwerp as the center of the diamond industry.

McCOY WINS MAT TOURNAY AT ARENA

TRENTON, Dec. 15—Bibber McCoy, chunky Boston Irishman, won his wrestling round robin at the Arena last night but it was another Irishman, Pat Corrigan, who stole the show.

To emerge victor, McCoy had to dispose of Ace Gordon, Worcester youngster; Lord Albert Mills, Canadian husky; Richard (Bull) Martin, Trenton roughneck, and Corrigan in the order named.

Corrigan endeared himself with the fans by defeating Walter Percy, classy Englishman; Angelo Leone, Italian rowdy, and Karl Davis, giant Southerner, respectively, while gaining the final.

In a travesty on Ferdinand the Bull, current song hit, Bull Martin and McCoy staged one of the best burlesques ever witnessed by a Trenton audience.

One had but to use his imagination to picture Martin as the bull and McCoy as the matador. Their routine during the 20 minutes they feinted at wrestling fitted appropriately with the rhyme of the song.

Percy and Corrigan staged what threatened to be the best match of the show in the initial meeting between the two. The match was curtailed after 11 minutes and 40 seconds as Referee Tommy Parsonnet stepped in when a cut over Percy's left eye started to bleed profusely. Percy did not incur the cut during the match, but in an altercation earlier in the week. The crowd was in sympathy with the arbiter's intervention and applauded both grapplers as they shook hands in the ring.

Corrigan after displaying the best of sportsmanship in his match with Percy proved his ability as a fine wrestler by winning a hard struggle with Leone. The Irishman used his famous flying scissors to gain the fall. Davis was disqualified for foul tactics in his bout with Corrigan.

Corrigan met McCoy with his left arm dangling at his side after his bruising encounter with Davis. McCoy made fast work of the final as he concentrated mainly on Corrigan's arm. Dropping his fatigued foe to the canvas with a body slam, McCoy sat on him to gain the fall after a minute and a half.
